

Onyinyechi Joy Nwosu is a women and child rights advocate. She is a child development and safety consultant.

A victim of adolescent mistakes, Onyinyechi has carved a niche for herself in mentoring girls to become confident ladies, with minimal developmental mistakes.

She holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Benin, Benin City, Nigeria.

Onyinyechi is the founder of Vivacious Development Initiative (VIDI), a gender and child-focused not-for-profit organization that is based in Aba, Abia State, Nigeria.

VIDI:

- Seeks and provides empowerment opportunities for rural women.
- Provides mentorship/skills acquisition opportunities for girl children.
- Is a lead campaigner against sexual assault and all forms of violence against women/girls (VAWG) and children
- Provides emotional support for victims of sexual/gender-based violence.
- Is an advocate for the realization of the rights of women and children.
- Partners schools, religious organizations, and community leaders in empowering children with age-inappropriate sexuality education.

Onyinyechi has two published books to her name: ►□ 'Guide for Parents on Preventing Child Sexual Abuse', ►□ 'My Precious Gift: Safety Guidelines for Children on Sexual Abuse'; and a few others yet unpublished.

She is a public speaker and the creator of The Voice Facebook community, venue for the oncoming massive campaign against sexual/gender-based violence.

Twitter: @onyijnwosu

Instagram: onyijnwosu