Dr. Joy Onyesoh is the International President of the oldest women's peace organization in the world established in 1914- Women's International League for Peace and Freedom. She also has a personal foundation - Joy Onyesoh Foundation through which she carries out philanthropic activities and propagates the Ministry of the Lord. Joy is an inspirational speaker, international best-selling author, trainer, personal development coach and researcher. She is a passionate, self-motivated individual with a drive to succeed, having excellent organizational and interpersonal skills. Joy is a woman of many parts, highly efficient, methodical and with a proactive approach to performance. Her slogan is "Too Focused to Give Up", and this drives her passion in making a difference in the lives of others. Joy's purpose is to inspire others to find their life's purpose and live an impactful life. She creates opportunities for women and girls to find and own their voice.

A Rotarian and a Paul Harris Fellow of Rotary International, Joy has a large heart for service towards humanity. She is an alumni of the prestigious Golda Meir MASHAV Carmel International Training Centre, Israel and the Women's Human Rights Institute, University of Toronto Canada. She has also earned several certificates in women and peace building, conflict resolution and transformation. Joy Onyesoh actively advocates for women's rights and substantive participation in peace and political processes and she has been invited to several international and national programs to make presentations on women's role and participation in peace and political processes and on the localization of UNSCR 1325. She has earned several certificates in women and peace building, gender analysis, conflict resolution and transformation.

Joy Onyesoh is a peacebuilder, the creator of the program "Broken but Remolded" a platform through which she touches and inspires hurting heart, drawing from her experience of nurturing her lovely daughter Adaeze who is living with the Brittle Bone condition.

Joy is focused on living out her purpose by being the best version of herself and all that God has called her to be.
